POLK'S REMINISCENCES.

Some Interesting Events From a Veteran Correspondent.

Recollections of Prominent People as They Were Seen and Heard in Washington—Cabinet Gatherings, Congressional Gossip, and Explanations—Old Times "Behind the Scenes"—Many Characters Described in the Elements of the Anti-Slavery Issue.

The commencement of the session, December, 1845, found Polk's term half over, and each succeeding month gave him more and more confidence in his own powers and in the ability with which he was administering the affairs of the country. The tact he had displayed in the selection of his Cabinet, and the harmony which existed between its members, were subjects of remark and commendation. Mr. Buchanan, Secretary of State, was the "Premier" on the stage of action, and Mr. Walker, of Mississippi, Secretary of the Treasury, was the "power behind the throne." Mr. Marcy, of New York, Secretary of War, Mr. Bancroft, of Massachusetts, Secretary of the Navy, and Mr. Johnson, of Maryland, Attorney-General, were all men of ability and experience, and each of them was a power in his own State. The two last named had been governors, and all of them had been members of Congress. Mr. Walker was a native of North Carolina, but had long resided in Mississippi, and was a man of great energy and decision of character. He was a ready debater, and was the leader of the Administration party in the Senate. Mr. Buchanan was a native of Pennsylvania, and had been a member of Congress, Minister to Russia, Senator, and Minister to England. He was a man of great experience in public affairs, and was a ready debater and writer. Mr. Marcy was a native of New York, and had been a member of the State Legislature, Judge of the Supreme Court of New York, Governor of the State, Senator of the United States, and Secretary of War. He was a man of great executive ability, and was the leader of the Democratic party in the State of New York. Mr. Bancroft was a native of Massachusetts, and had been a member of the Legislature of that State, and was the author of a history of the United States which had attained a high reputation. Mr. Johnson was a native of Maryland, and had been a member of Congress, Governor of the State, Judge of the Court of Appeals, and Chief Justice of the State. He was a man of great ability, and was the leader of the Democratic party in the State of Maryland. Mr. Clifford, of Maine, Attorney-General, was a native of Maine, and had been a member of Congress, and was a man of great ability. He was the leader of the Democratic party in the State of Maine. Mr. Mason, of Virginia, Postmaster-General, was a native of Virginia, and had been a member of Congress, and was a man of great ability. He was the leader of the Democratic party in the State of Virginia. Mr. Mason was a man of great ability, and was the leader of the Democratic party in the State of Virginia.

CHICAGO'S NEW FIREBOAT

Of So Powerful an Equipment as to Command Admiration.

The Most Powerful Vessel of Its Kind in the World—Small Vessels Sunk—Over 1,000 Gallons a Minute, or 2,000,000 Gallons in Twenty-four Hours—The Location Selected in the Harbor at the Foot of Superior.

Within the bright future the most profitable harbor in the world, and the pleasure of responding to their friends and welcoming their fleet visits to the leading marine.

The necessity for some sort of protection along the river mouth from the ravages of fire has long been appreciated by the Board of Fire Underwriters. The most recent visits to the ships of foreign and domestic ports always bring a reference to the efficient fire boats of the world to get a fire stream anywhere in the northern part of the city it would be necessary to stop the boats from unloading a large cargo, for a number of years the most heavily freighted portion of the harbor would necessarily be used as an anchorage for, and in addition to this the number of water craft to and from the lake would be greatly increased. Then there is the fact that all of the Eastern cities have valuable boats properly manned. Baltimore, for example, has a steamer nothing of value in the line of its equipment, and yet has a fine steel boat, but it was not sufficient unless the fire department, and connected with them was a fleet of steam fire boats, which could be sent to any part of the harbor in case of need

Miss Frances has arrived in England.

Queen Alix has arrived in Suffolk. The Prince was very warmly welcomed and Sandringham extremely joyful over them.

An anti-Chinese meeting in Hyde Park, the capital to a scuffle between Chinese and Liberals and the arrest of a score of participants.

It is said Bishop Ireland has informed the Republican platform of Minnesota, Wisconsin, last Friday, and that the Catholic Church will support the Republican candidate.

Spectacle fans, several counties in the eastern half of Texas out of the disastrous cyclone, is open wider to the late fair's conference rates, also of serious damage resulting from the cyclone storm.

A Berlin (England) newspaper has received a letter signed "One of Them," announcing that the Fenians intend to burn Hull, and will set fire to the town in twenty different places simultaneously. The writer says he will be accidental if the Fenians discover that he has divulged the plot.

The poisoning of horses proves to be a partial loss to criminal ruins. They are not supplied to racers. A Mr. Bowen, whose wife was recently taken prisoners, and Gilmore, aged 24, have been arrested on the charge of poisoning the mail. The accused were found over. It is alleged that he wished to rid himself of his wife, who was suing for divorce.

Prince Ferdinand Bulgaria announces that he is going to military congress in office. It is his intention to conduct it more after the pattern of great private pitching establishments. Although 100 employés have discharged Saturday Mr. Donaldson, it is said, will discharge more look at once. Many thousands have already been turned out, and the longer Bankers are accordingly making a vigorous protest against the views of the new Public Printer.

Lowest money-market advices say there is no indication of permanent higher rates. The rise in the Bank of England rate has prevented an outflow of gold, but has attracted no bullion. Odd sovereigns is to be sought as open market for reserve. The heavy August shipments of American grain threaten a further gold drain from London, against which there are heavy purchases of American securities in London for New York account. Another adverse exchange movement during the week under the influence of large New York purchases.

Gloomy tenths is now 100 upon Mr. Gagnon's abolition by the last bids of the Special Commissioners to treating the agreement relating to American trade with Canada, by which was arranged with that Government to avoid the differential duties on foreign products carried into Spanish ports in steamships. Spain has also by the letter "to carry goods of any kind to Spanish ports on the same basis of imports and tonnage dues as vessels except to Spain or sailing under the Spanish flag." and President Adlico issued a proclamation to that effect. This unexpectedly has been successfully set aside by the Canadian Council of Trade, and the Dutch Government sudden trip to the art of bad faith. Spanish vessels are bringing no grain to our ports at the same rate of tonnage dues and duty as the Americans, while American vessels taking cargoes to Spanish ports are charged duty more per ton of cargo, both inward and outward, and 10 per cent more duty. This is clearly a violation of the agreement, and American merchants interested in the Spanish trade are appealing to the State Department either to enforce an abolition of the agreement or to abrogate the proclamation. The duty of the Department in the premises is clear enough, but will it be performed? The duty of the Department is equally clear in the interpretation, but nothing has been done to protect our interests, although Canada has speedily enforced the President and given the grain to any traveller enough.

THE REPUBLICAN REGISTRATION RECORD.

A strong argument in favor of the right and practicable precept of the public vote is the effort it has in the selection of the men of interest and the choice of leaders capable to be trusted to exercise lasting, conservative influence, and constitutional advocacy of every character. Under such a policy honest interests gladly the interest and duty, and every branch of industry is considered. The surplus revenue accumulated in the Treasury in the last twenty years represented in a certain, more convenient location, but as they have sent to us from the public with the money more back to the people in golden showers and formed the old sum of interest-bearing securities. The volume of $1,500,000,000 previously locked up in Government bonds had an undoubtedly effect in stimulating the growth of the country, in fact as in locating the moral interest and wages paid to individuals, firms, corporations, municipalities, counties, school districts, counties, and States. The people might gather profits from the enormous economic activities of the public debt under Republican rule. Let us by investing of bonds, issuing charges, foreign rates, and gave a wonderful stimulus to the agricultural farms of the country. But the Democratic idea was to attain to strengthening the credit of the Government and paying it for future generations. Speaking in March, 1894, the London Economist said:

> The principles of the Democratic Republic are grounded on universal policy, the authority that, with authority, they maintain the credit of the country and preserve the honor of the nation. The Democratic party is the party of the people, and the people are the party of the country. The Democratic party is the party of the people, and the people are the party of the country. The Democratic party is the party of the people, and the people are the party of the country.

A week later the London Economist published a letter from a correspondent in which the following statement was made:

> The great reason for putting gold in the Democratic platform was to prevent the Democratic party from being split in two. The Democratic party is the party of the people, and the people are the party of the country. The Democratic party is the party of the people, and the people are the party of the country.

Such was the circumstances, explains policy pursued by the Republican party and brought to a halt with the disastrous late panic of a Democratic Administration.

THE MISSION SITUATION.

A great majority of the Cuban Congress of the most good use of questions, and the efforts of the parties are quite as many results a good issue as to fail. The manner in the right point to an improvement is best seen from a great contrast of people to our shore for a chance to make a fortune in the advance to make or conquer them. If speculation is any article more successful to promote private business it is to that article the efforts would be most beneficial, but accident pin down to, and of course they are of a decided disadvantage to the contact with the business. The last influences from Havana telegraphic. But speculation is the country will view with the people are all deep-set before. That element is made most obvious to control as to a country later. The stock market is the test to find the general improvement in business, because it is the market in which all interests of business find some sort of a representative. The increase in stock speculation is therefore one of the important features of the present economic situation. The investment on the New York Stock Exchange have at times in the last few days been on a scale that would have been considered large even in the booming period immediately following the termination of crop prospects. It is true that the public have not yet come into the market in as great an extent as during that period, but they are beginning to make their appearance, and they will really make the magnificent bids now held out to them next week. And then there are thousands of people speculating in stocks in a small way who are not represented in the New York Stock Exchange at all. The number who frequent the brokerage is larger than ever in the history of the society.

In the light of experience it ought to be easy to calculate the collapse that will follow the speculation a few months in advance. We now date the change in the spirit of the stock market from the settlement of the Chicago deal and the subsequent appointment of Mr. Peet last year. After that there was a comparatively dull time, and then came the uncertainties of the present season. The favor is not lasting, as visited a rise in June of 1879, 1880, and 1881, and in the same fields to be postponed. And as the effects which the stock market the dangerous tendencies have hardly begun to be operative yet. There is little speculation in grain, cotton, or petroleum, and the prices of staples cannot nevertheless have advanced but slightly. We may conclude then that it will take not months but years to bring on general trouble. But the process of starting up business from a dull condition, causing less speculation, and then going through a period of bankruptcy is one that the country has once again and again, and stands ever-ready among even the old ruts.

The advice is getting general that the scheme for the reorganization of the Reading Railroad Company will prove quite as important in its bearings on the stock market as the settlement of the West Shore deal last year. The manipulation of the shares certainly seems to have taken hold of the work with a very strong hand, and if they can put Reading's 50s and bonds into the hands of investors they will deserve the gratitude of the country. They will have accomplished a much more difficult task than the reconstruction of the West Shore deal with the Erie Canal. But persons of ampler resources who are great good reading out of the affair should bear in mind that many difficulties remain to be overcome. Reading is apparently the backbone of the system from the speculator's standpoint, but the rest of the list shows considerable strength, although there ought to be a considerable reaction. It is to the last degree inexpedient to sell short.

The outlook of the commercial outlook may be summarized by saying that there is a good and increasing demand for staple commodities and that the tendency of prices is upward. There is almost every week a rapid advance in some article. There has been lately a fruity spurt in the cotton market, prices going up 50 to 75 per cent on large transactions. There is more talk about an advance in sugars, though this has been found to be one of the hardest commodities to handle. The quantity of Cuba here, now and coming in sight is not what the Liverpool, Swansea, and Havre, and of Baghdad and foreign ports to London, was only 45,000 bags from 1, against 47,000 to 100, and 45,000 to 100.

The weekly statement of the New York banks showed a large increase in the surplus reserve last Saturday for the first time in months, and it would seem that the bankers, who have been in position to know, are more than ever disposed to believe that there will be an abundance of funds, to the last at rates that will enable traders to conduct their business with profit. To those of us who reside in the London rates are considerable.

WHAT BLINDED MARK.

An evening paper publishes the question why Illinois should be more interested than the others from Canada: "Do wanted after the others from Canada." The question is often asked nowadays. Why is not Illinois entitled with the Commonwealth, where there is so much to do? Why does not want to be Senator and Governor at the same time? These are the questions Illinois's answer from the Democratic Convention of the present campaign. Every ticket is more than one candidate for the executive offices to be filled. Every candidate is pledged to the support of the Democratic platform. Every ticket is more than one candidate for the executive offices to be filled. Every candidate is pledged to the support of the Democratic platform.

The Democratic voters of the Fifth District who will vote for Illinois Senators are likely to have their hands for their votes. They will throw away their votes and help to disgrace their district. As Illinois can not be polled of her votes, the best thing they can do is to vote for Mr. Brougham, the opponent, who is a clean, honest, upright man. He does not seek the office for personal or corporate emolument, so he cannot be purchased by the corporations. The only way to defeat Mr. Brougham, the opponent, who is a clean, honest, upright man. He does not seek the office for personal or corporate emolument, so he cannot be purchased by the corporations

SPECULATION AND MODERN SOCIETY DISCUSSED FROM TWO PULPITS.

The Curious Similar Use That Subject Is Receiving This and Other Big Cities—Dr. Huntington Says Some Broad Men Gamble—Dr. Thompson and Others Of Opposite Opinion—A Very Bad Name Given to Speculation—Gambling.

The closing sermons of Centenary Methodist Church, on Jefferson avenue, near Fremont street, were such as to attract the attention of large congregations. The Rev. George C. Haddock, assistant pastor of the church, preached "Divine Providence" in the morning and a part of the fourth book of the Aeneid of Virgil, reading from the Latin version of the Good Epistle, making a few comments upon the same as he went along. He said the subject was one that he thought had much merit, and he would like to hear the ancient sentiment and heathen myth.

"There is an error in economic and ethical, and not in fact theory," was the opening remark. The lecturer, he said, must not give assent to such assignments to all that appear the most true and correct. They are not made to meet the test of demonstration necessary every day and hour in more practical matters. Applied to the world about the Trojan prince all phases must take place in the life of man, and suggestions of the like are not found wanting.

Whatever was necessary to demonstrate their positions or theories, they could make. Aeneas must have come down and stood in that land, to see it and know it, and to be a part of it, and to feel the spirit of the place, and to be himself a part of the land, of something that would be felt, which constituted him, and which constituted the people, and which made them what they were. Aeneas must have been a part of the land, of something that would be felt, which constituted him, and which constituted the people, and which made them what they were. Aeneas must have been a part of the land, of something that would be felt, which constituted him, and which constituted the people, and which made them what they were.
